How you can benefit from using the Visa Government Program:

Control spending and reduce costs. Governments using Visa Purchasing solutions can easily monitor and control expenses. You can use single-transaction dollar limits to restrict the amount of a particular purchase or predetermine spending limits over a given day or an entire billing cycle. In addition, you can allocate expenses to a specific cost center, project, or general ledger account. Government agencies using Visa Purchasing can often save US$60 to US$90 in purchasing process costs per transaction.

Greater financial control. Visa travel solutions allow governments to efficiently track travel expenses, monitor vendor charges, and pre-set employee spending limits. Detailed reports provide transaction level information that may be used in vendor discount negotiations and employee travel compliance management.

Less paperwork. Visa Purchasing solutions simplify the procurement process while reducing the need for requisitions, approvals, purchase orders, invoices, and checks. Visa automates the travel process by streamlining expense reports, accounts payable, and general ledger systems.

Efficient data management. Enhanced data services can provide data to help manage and track your travel and procurement expenditures. Transaction data can be integrated into your enterprise resource planning and reporting systems.

Worldwide acceptance. Visa is the world's leading payment brand and the largest payment system worldwide with more volume than all other major payment cards combined. Since launching several travel and procurement programs for the U.S. government, Visa continues to be a leading provider of commercial solutions to governments worldwide.
